

Surface Concept House, Lundberg Design, 2004

Renovated from a 1971 four-level redwood house in Diamond Heights, with a view of downtown and the Bay Bridge, Lundberg Design's Surface Magazine Concept House fuses nature and new materials. An entry ramp from the driveway is made of pebbles suspended in cast resin; it bridges a reflecting pool fed by rainwater which circulates over and through the house. The Surface showhouse and its landscaped site are inspired by the work of sculptors Andy Goldsworthy and San Francisco native Richard Serra.
